

Parental Math's

As part of the work of developing understanding about what we teach and how we do it, North Beckton has held sessions for parents around math's. Parents spent time in classes looking at books and participating in activities with their children. Parents and children were very engaged. We then came together in the hall where parents had a chance to ask questions, have a look at the resources used across the school and to develop their understanding of expectations in each year groups.

The feedback has been very positive and the morning was a great success all round!

Parents' voice

Thank you for arranging this math workshop. It was great to see how they are learning at school. It will be very helpful for us to support at home.
