*this is
my
story*

My name is Stephanie and I am a teacher at Curwen Primary School. Prior to working in schools I was a lawyer for the United Nations (UN) and worked on lots of cases internationally. My heart yearned for my home town of London. I volunteered for the Victim Support and Witness Service at Stratford Magistrate Court, helping children to get ready for court cases and supporting them emotionally through it. This is where I discovered my passion for working with children. I have been here at Curwen for 5 years now and I have loved every minute of my time! It is inspirational to see my colleagues work as hard as they do and this inspires me to be the best teacher I can be for the children. The children at Curwen are wonderful and it is amazing to see the progress they make and how much they flourish – not only academically but also their social skills. This makes me feel I am having a positive impact in their lives and the wider community.
