

Transforming Inclusion in Education

Helping you achieve a genuine culture of inclusion.

A practical, evidence-informed training programme to help schools create more inclusive, supportive and successful learning environments for all.

'Helping schools to deliver their Inclusion Strategy'

Every learner. Every day.

A simple, supportive journey for your school

Four clear steps. Lasting impact.

1

Initial assessment call

We'll learn about your school, your priorities and how we can best support you.

2

Training session for your staff

A 3-hour interactive session co-delivered with education experts and Experts with Lived Experience. Can be delivered face to face or online (2 x 90 minutes).

3

Follow up visits

We work with you to embed changes, provide ongoing support and review progress.

4

Integrating with local health and care services

We bring schools together with their local Experts at Hand and strengthen links with education, health and care partners for joined-up support.

Lauren's story

From being misunderstood to making a difference for others.

Lauren is an Autistic ADHDER who wasn't diagnosed until after completing a degree and a master's. In her personal education journey — from primary school through to university — she faced challenges that many neurodivergent young people still experience today: feeling different, being misunderstood, and struggling to find the right support.

Now, Lauren co-delivers our training, sharing her story with honesty and warmth. Her lived experience brings the training to life, helping education staff understand the real impact of their attitudes, language and practice — and empowering them with practical ways to make a positive difference for every young person.

"I share my story so that other young people don't have to struggle in the same way. When schools understand neurodiversity, they can change lives."
